NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Thrown from Carriage on Main Street.

Bert Tucker was driving his horse along Main street, Friday, when something that Mr. Tucker describes as a rushing noise, frightened the horse, and he started up so quickly that he broke the crossbar. This let the whiffle tree onto the horse and he started to run and the wagon hit a post in front of the smith Shoe Store with so much force that Mr. Tucker was thrown over the dasher and between the fills; and the horse cleared himself from the wagon but was soon caught.

Mr. Tucker dislocated his left shoulder injured his side and had cut his face, besides getting a general shaking up. He was helped into Frank Richardson's barber shop and physicians called.

Mr. Tucker was taken to Mrs. A. T. Farrar's on Deering street, and Saturday afternoon he was able to be moved to his home at Norway Lake. He is rapidly recovering and no serious results are now thought will ensue, though at first, for a man of Mr. Tucker's age, the accident looked quite serious.

Walter Stevens has moved from Beal street into the house recently vacated by Hiram Wiles, and Mr. Wiles has moved into the Baker house where James Deane lived.

Mr. and Mrs. Elon Brown are visiting two weeks in Portland, Portsmouth and Boston. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Oxnard are keeping house for them while they are away.

The bungalow which J. B. Hazen is building on Pleasant street, is up, boarded and the roofing is being put on. This will be a very pretty place when completed.

C. W. Cummings of Hebron, who lives in the apple belt of this district, has gathered 150 bushels of fruit, which for him, perhaps, is considerable less than a half crop.

John Frank and Henry O. Holden are working at Samuel Hayden's cottage on Lake Pennesseewassee. They are putting in a bank wall, a foundation for a boat house and a cement wharf.

The Universalist Society will hold its Annual Fair at Concert Hall, Dec. 1 and 2. The committees in charge have its work well in hand and it promises to be the most successful fair the society has ever held.

The Norway lodge of Odd Fellows, at their meeting next Tuesday evening, will confer the third degree upon a candidate from Mt. Mica Lodge of South Paris. Grand representative, A. S. Kimball, will speak of his Western trip and the works of Sovereign Grand Lodge which he attended.

The 14 year old daughter of Herbert McAllister, who lives at the head of Main street, is engaged in breaking in a two year old colt, mornings and nights after school. It is a good looking colt and she handles it in good shape. She says it is hers and she must train it so that it will be a good horse when it is grown up.

Calvin H. Abbott, son of George Abbott of Northwest Norway, who has been fire warden in the north country this summer, has returned to the upper dam, to take up his winter's work, as scaler for the Coe heirs. He expects to get through there about next April, and of course he subscribed for the Advertiser to be sent him during that time.

The Browning club met with Mrs. Henry Foster last Monday evening. Each member present read a magazine article on Forestry. Mrs. A. J. Stearns read a very interesting paper prepared by Mrs. Alton Wheeler of South Paris, which she read at the State convention at Augusta last winter. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. A. J. Stearns next Monday evening.

M. M. Hamlin of North Waterford shows us a nicely formed, well colored, double apple. He picked it from one of his natural trees. On this tree there were two such apples. These are good apples and he has been thinking of grafting them into some other trees so as to have more of this kind of fruit. Mr. Hamlin did not get a very large crop of apples this year, only about 20 barrels of Baldwins.

On Nov. 19, at the Opera House, for the benefit of the Senior class of N. H. S. will be presented "The Union Depot," a drama which is meeting with great success in the various towns and cities of New England. THE MAINE POMOLOGICAL MEETING

Fruit, Flowers, Insects, Speeches, Banquet, Election of Officers, Award of Premiums, etc.

The boxes began to arrive Monday, and all day Tuesday the officers and men in charge were busy arranging and putting the exhibits in order. The tables, made by C. H. Adams especially for this occasion, were filled with apples, pears, berries, canned and evaporated fruit and jellies, plants and flowers. There were also apples in boxes and barrels.

The plates were judged by the score cards by form, size, color, uniformity, quality and freedom from blemishes; the fruit by texture and flavor, size, color, uniformity and freedom from blemishes; the package by material, marking and solidity; the packing by bulge or swell, alignment, hight of ends and firmness.

The hall looked very pretty in its red, white and blue decorations, but the exhibits were the most showy decorations.

The instructive and literary exercises began promptly at 7.30 o'clock, Tuesday evening, the president, William Craig of Auburn, having charge of the meeting. Prayer was offered by Rev. M. C. Ward of the Universalist church.

The "Address of Welcome" was given to the visitors by Hon. John A. Roberts of Norway. It gave him pleasure to welcome the Maine State Pomological Society the second time to Norway. The interest in the work is of the greatest. Oxford County raises some apples and some good ones, and is glad to have instruction from scientific men who have given a life study to horticultural work. It has been a tremendous struggle,—this entering upon a new era. The old condition and old methods are passing away. It takes pluck to produce such beautiful fruit as is in this hall. Don't discousage the young people in planting trees by telling them of the insect pests and other bad things to be overcome, but rather, show them the results of a good orchard, the pleasure and the profit, and show them how to grow orchards and the best fruit. He asked the visitors to look over our town when not attending the meetings.

The vice president, E. L. White of Bowdoinham, responded. He said that invitations had come to them from several places for this yearly meeting, but they said, "Let us go to the town of Norway, for we shall have a good time." We want to gather in members who grow fruit. After the growers raise the fruit, they have to educate the consumers to demand that special fruit often times, i. e., the McIntosh reds. The growers knew this was a good variety, but it took some time to educate the consumer that it was. Now it is considered rather a fancy product and $4 and $5 a barrel is the price for the best.

The president, William Craig, in his address said, "If we are up-to-date, our methods will be known." He than spoke of the results in the New England show at Boston of the Oxford county apples.

He was glad to see the interest here that organized the Oxford County Pomological Society. As a people, we are deriving much benefit from our fruit. This State Society is sort of a head center to gatheer the best ideas in horticulture and tell the growers. Better fruit means more money, better homes, better education, better people. He does not believe the Society being officered too long by the same men. Different men have different ideas.

The secretary, W. J. Ricker of Turner, said he had written out a report and then left it at home. Two things they had wanted last year they had got. One was an experiment farm where orchard operations could be carried on for the good of the fruit growers in the state. The other, the laws that regulate the packing of the fruit in boxes and barrels, and lettering. He gave the credit to Dr. G. M. Twichell, but after he closed his remarks the Dr. gave the credit of the bill passed by the last legislature, to the Oxford County Pomological Society. The Dr. also spoke encouragingly of co-operation.

The treasurer, E. L. Lincoln of Wayne, gave a statement of the financial condition of the association. Besides the invested fund of $1,710, there was a reserve of about $1,000.

F. S. Pike of South Paris, sang a selection and as an encore sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

C. S. Pope of Manchester, a member of the Experimental Station Council, had been talking and working for the best in apple growing for the past quarter of a century, and while his remarks were brief he must have been pleased with the result of the reform in apple culture that had been accomplished since he first began to advocate better methods.

E. Cyrus Miller of Haydenville, Mass., is an enthusiastic orchardist and he makes his work a business for the profit there is in it. He began his address with his packing house of three stories, capacity 10,000 barrels, his packers and the team for hauling apples on the screen. He spoke in the highest terms of the agricultural press. Three things he says the State of Maine has that the other New England states do not have—a state entomologist, a state farm and a state law for grading and packing fruit.

Maine apples are the best in the world, noted for their intrinsic value of quality as well as of beauty to the eye. Larger faith in our own efforts, soil, climate and conditions are all that are needed to forward the fruit interests. Our market is in the Middle West largely and not "Across the water." The New England apples are demanded by the New Englanders who have gone West because they know the apples have value and flavor.

"Where trees are too closely planted cut out every other one. Remove all undesirable varieties. Begin pruning, but extend this operation over several years rather than to try to do it all in one year. Seal all wounds with lead and oil.

Norway & Western R. R. Only Sleeps.

The Norway & Western R. R. project is only sleeping. It is not fully dead, at least this is what we infer from conversation overheard recently in a hotel. A party of Boston capitalists and promoters were discussing the matter.

Frank Starbird and his spirited pair of blacks, recently purchased at Locke's Mills, took the three gentlemen over the route for an inspection last Tuesday. The roads were beautifully rough, but the scenery overhead magnificent and the air gentle and refreshing.

What conclusions the party came to we are unable to state, but feel from talk and inquiries that they were inclined to believe the project feasible. The visitors were C. H. Wellington, William F. Goodrich and J. J. McCarthy.

How much subsidy will be required from people living along the line is unknown. Possibly they will ask nothing as there has been a large amount of money already expended in grading the road, location and legal expenses, and it is hoped that they will purchase it sufficiently low to enable them to put the road through without calling upon the good people of this vicinity.

Universalist Notes.

The Ladies' Circle will hold a social Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Smith. This is to be gentlemen's night and the men are invited as the guests of the ladies.

The Mission circle met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. James Danforth and enjoyed a program on Japan. The mite boxes were opened at this time and the offerings were devoted to missionary work.

The Ladies' Sewing circle met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. F. Jones. The ladies are busy making preparations for their annual fair which will be held Dec. 1st and 3d.

Next Sunday afternoon the Junior Y. P. C. U. will resume its meetings for the winter, meeting each Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Men's class will give their oyster supper next Tuesday evening at 6.30, followed by the farce, "A Confidential Clerk" which will be presented by the men of the class. For those who do not care for oysters other tables will be set with baked beans and meats so the wants of all can be filled.

Rev. M. C. Ward will speak on ex-President Elliott's interpretation of "Religion of the Future" next Sunday morning.

School Notes.

The country schools will close Friday in all districts in Norway except the Lake, Center and Swift Corner schools, for a two weeks' vacation.

Agnes Plummer, who is teaching at Waterford Flat, visited the Lake school and some of the graded schools to observe methods of teaching.

Supt. Felch has organized a Teachers' club at Waterford Flat for the purpose of discussing methods of teaching and questions pertaining to the management of schools. He reports excellent meetings.

Emmie Young, the popular teacher at South Waterford, was in town, Monday. She had been visiting the upper primary school and the Lake school. The system of school visitation is an excellent means for the improvement of teaching.

A teachers' class has been organized at the high school, and Supt. Felch plans to meet the pupil teachers Friday, after school. A regular course in Methods of Teaching and School Organization will be taken up during the fall and winter, and during the spring term it is hoped that the pupil teachers will be given work in teaching some of the grades, under the direction of our excellent grade teachers. In this way some of our pupils can be fitted to take up the work of teaching in our schools with some idea of the importance of the teacher's work and some preparation for doing the work successfully.

Veranda Club Notes.

Veranda club met with Mrs. Vira Kilgore Thursday afternoon, Nov. 4, to sew on aprons for the fair which will be held this week, Thursday. After the business meeting adjourned the hostess served assorted cake, sandwiches and cocoa.

The W. C. T. U.

The meeting of the Woman's Christian Union with Mrs. Ella Noyes, Tuesday afternoon, was well attended and the program was most interesting and helpful. After the business meeting Sunday school work and narcotics occupied the first of the afternoon and reports of the State Convention came later.

Mrs. Georgia Andrews read a very interesting account of a Young People's Union Temperance meeting, carried out by members of the Sunday school of Machias, Maine.

Mrs. Annie Barnes read from the book "The Great American Fraud," which portrays the tremendous cheating of the public by the patent medicine quacks. After reading the exposures and proven facts set forth in this book, no one would want to trust his life to these money-making schemes. If one is sick the only safe way is to consult a physician, and keep entirely away from patent medicine, all of which are dangerous even to a well person, and even more perilous to one who is ill. Anyone wishing to read the book may obtain it of Mrs. Ella Noyes, Crescent street.

Mrs. Barker read from Margaret Dye Ellis' address. Mrs. Ellis, who is the National Superintendent of Legislation and resides in Washington, gave very interesting accounts of the legislators, and spoke in glowing terms of our representative, John Swasey.

Mrs. B. C. Wentworth read some reports of the Convention, which were very interesting. It was voted to observe the National Temperance Day, Nov. 28, by a union meeting of the Sunday schools.

Meeting adjourned to meet the second Tuesday in December, wherever the next leaders shall decide.

Last Saturday Norway High School defeated Bridgton Academy for the first time in an interesting game of foot ball, 5-0.

N. H. S. out played Bridgton in every way, going around their ends at will, also making large gains through the line. Felch played a game to be proud of, making end runs and going through the line on formation plays for large gains. Felch's quick playing really won the touchdown for Norway, he jumping into the air and getting a forward pass made by the opponents, then running within a few yards of the Bridgton line. The proceeds are to be given to the C. E. society. Rev. Mr. McWhorter has somewhat changed the lecture, having added some things which he did not have time to speak on when he previously delivered the lecture.

Eva Andrews entertained about twenty of her young friends in honor of her tenth birthday, Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6, from three to five. Tables were set in the sitting room, where games were played. The dining table was loaded with all kinds of eatables in the center of which was placed a birthday cake. The refreshments included ice cream served in cones, cake, cookies, punch, candy and fruit. The plates used were of paper, decorated by Ralph Andrews, and everyone present took one home as a souvenir. Miss Andrews received many birthday presents. Three of her friends who were present were also celebrating their birthdays the same day.

An addition has been made to the athletic field at the High School grounds. A piece of land has been purchased next south of the schoolhouse lot 75 feet frontage on Pine street and the depth of the school lot which is 400 feet. This addition is a good piece of level land southeast of the present ball field. By a little rearranging, a much better ball field will be secured. This piece of land cost $300 and was purchased by the High School Athletic association. This addition was brought about largely through the efforts of N. D. Bolster. The deed runs to the three trustees for the benefit of the association and the money has been borrowed of the Paris Trust Company, a note being given endorsed by thirty interested citizens of the town.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Norway People Know How to Save It.

Many Norway people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

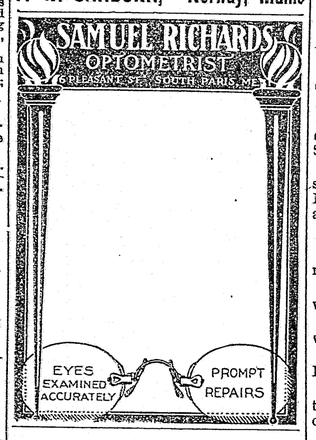

Mrs. Susan F. Harlow, Skillerin Ave., South Paris, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions and have always found them to be a good kidney remedy. They strengthened my kidneys and were very effective in relieving the other symptoms of kidney complaint from which I suffered so severely. Recently, feeling that my kidneys needed a tonic, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and I had taken but a few doses before I was relieved. I continued using the remedy and I have since felt better in every way." 45-46

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts.

Who has a Friend.

Who has a friend not liable to blast,
For selfish ends, your character upon the rock of fate;
Aye, such a friend, whose love is not a task,
If left unpaid, may change his way to one of dangerous hate.

Who has a friend who never will impose
On your good nature in some selfish way;
Borrow and flaunt your ideals, help wear out your clothes
To make more elegant his own array.

Who has a friend who never stoops to flaunt
Your idiosyncrasies before other men;—
With sage advice your lesser wisdom taunt,—
Who has a friend.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?
Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.
Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

Home of Swamp-Root.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Gathered from Our Exchanges.

The "poor Indian" may, as Mr. Pope suggests, have an "untutored mind," but he is a keen observer and readily learns the object-lessons which white men unwittingly or unwillingly teach him.

A half-naked Indian was looking on at some workmen in the employ of Governor Dudley, of Massachusetts.

"Why don't you work and get yourself some clothes?" asked the Governor.

"Why don't you work?" retorted the son of the forest.

"I work head-work," said Dudley, pointing to his head.

The Indian said he was willing to work, and agreed to kill a calf for the Governor. Having done so he came for his pay.

"But," said the Governor, "you have not dressed the calf."

"No," said the Indian; "I was to have a shilling for killing him. Am he no dead, Governor?"

Finding himself outwitted, the Governor gave him another shilling for dressing it. It was not long before the Indian came back, demanding a good shilling in place of the bad one which he declared the Governor had paid him. The Governor paid him another.

Returning a second time with still another brass piece to be exchanged, the Governor, convinced of his knavery, offered him half a crown if he would deliver a letter for him.

The letter was directed to the keeper of the prison, and ordered him to give the bearer a certain number of lashes.

The Indian, suspecting that all was not right, and meeting a servant of the Governor, induced him to take the letter to its address.

The result of the Indian's stratagem was that a severe whipping was administered to the unfortunate servant. The Governor was greatly chagrined at being a second time outwitted by the Indian.

On falling in with him some time after he accosted him with some severity, asking him how he had dared to cheat and deceive him so many times.

"Head work, Governor, head-work,' was the audacious reply.

Why Do Men Wait On Women.

Irreverent persons suggest that men's only object in life is to please woman and to serve her. Slightly exaggerated this statement, perhaps; yet there must be some truth at the bottom of it. Otherwise, why should man wait on woman at all? Why take pleasure in being agreeable to her? Why go out of his way to assist her? In other words, why should he be chivalrous?

Chivalry is the expression of man's real instinctive deference for woman. Although like other instinctive feelings, it is being modified or rooted up by education and civilization, the chivalrous instinct nevertheless still makes itself felt in modern man. It impels him, when confronted with woman, to pass through three different stages. In the first one he strives to attract woman's attention, in the second to please her, finally to serve her.

The unconcerned are highly diverted by the first. There are no end to the things a man will do to attract woman's attention. Nothing is too absurd. One man found it necessary to spoil his patent leather shoes. He was being rowed across a lake when a girl passed by in her canoe. Without a moment's hesitation he plunged both into the rippling water, letting them dangle there stupidly.

Other men use other methods. Some grow spry and climb fences, stumble over their own feet; some imagine themselves the proud possessors of a voice and exercise it; others whistle out of tune or twirl their mustaches. Still others grow disconcerted and forget where they are going or lose the thread of their conversation.

So much for the desire of being noticed. When it comes to pleasing women, men are very particular. Then they strive for personal perfection. The intellectual ones go about with poetry in their breast pockets and learn it by heart, ready to repeat it at the first occasion. Or they dabble into art or literature or some "ism" in order to acquire the correct pose. The more matter-of-fact puzzle over material things, whether their hair is parted in the right place; whether the red or the blue tie will make the better impression. For men are vain and dress to please.—Harper's Weekly.

Care of Rubber Footwear.

Some valuable suggestions are contained in a circular issued by a western rubber footwear producing firm.

1. Importance of fitting rubbers properly. However good the quality or perfect the style, rubber shoes will not give satisfactory service if they are not properly fitted to the leather shoes over which they are intended to be worn. Neither can rubber boots or lumberman's shoes be expected to wear well if they are not properly fitted. Always fit boots as small as they can be worn with comfort. It is impossible to make a boot that will not break in the foot if it is worn too large. Fit them small and thus avoid wrinkles and insure good service.

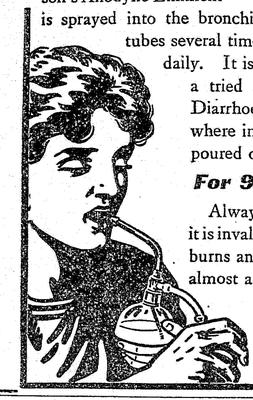

2. Grease and oil are very injurious. Do not allow greese, oil or animal fat to come in contact with rubber goods, as it will speedily decompose the best rubber that can be produced. Even milk contains enough grease to injure rubber boots and shoes.

3. Strong sunlight is injurious. Rubber boots and shoes when not being worn should always by kept away from the air as much as possible, and in a cool, dark place, as strong sunlight and hot, dry air will soon cause even the best rubber to oxidize and crack, especially where it is wrinkled or the outside surface of the rubber is under a constant strain.

4. Heat is fatal. Remember that heat unbearable to the hand is more than enough to destroy the value and wearing qualities of good rubber boots and shoes. When you warm your feet before the fire or radiator with your rubbers on, by the time you feel the warmth the rubbers are usually cooked to death.

5. Rubber tears easily. This is true of cloth, paper and various other things, but few goods besides rubber have such great tensile strength and yet will tear so easily after a rent is once made.

Bronchitis can be quickly relieved if Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is sprayed into the bronchial tubes several times daily. Quaker Oats

In an article published in the Youth's Companion of September 23rd, 1909, Dr. Browne, the great medical authority on foods, says, about brain and muscle building—

"There is one kind of food that seems to me of marked value as a food to the brain and to the whole body throughout childhood and adolescence (youth), and that is oatmeal.

"Oats are the most nutritious of all the cereals, being richer in fats, organic phosphorus and lecithins."

He says oatmeal is gaining ground with the well-to-do of Great Britain. He speaks of it as the mainstay of the Scottish laborer's diet and says it produces a big-boned, well-developed, mentally energetic race.

His experiments prove that good oatmeal such as Quaker Oats not only furnishes the best food for the human being, but eating it strengthens and enlarges the thyroid gland—this gland is intimately connected with the nourishing processes of the body.

In conclusion he says—

"It seems probable therefore that the bulk and brawniness of the Northerners (meaning the Scotch) has been in some measure due to the stimulation of the thyroid gland by oatmeal porridge in childhood."

The Scotch eat Quaker Oats because it is the best of all oatmeals.

Why Brown Was Acquitted.

Enoch Foster, Judge; A. S. Kimball, Prosecuting Attorney: Orrington M Hanscom, Deputy Sheriff.

About the time when Charles F. Browne, better known as "Artemas Ward," was born in Waterford, a quiet hamlet in Maine, another branch of the family produced a Charles Browne, who in later years became famous throughout New England under the stage name of "That Comical Browne."

Recollection is that the man who "showed wax figgers" and the man who "made faces at folks" were second cousins.

Early in his career "That Comical Browne" was suspected of selling intoxicating liquor unlawfully, but "That Slippery Cuss," as Artemas Ward called him, always eluded conviction.

In the neighboring town of Oxford lived a bright, young deputy sheriff, Orrinton M. Hanscom, who was weary of work in a woolen factory and was fired with an ambition to prove himself a great detective. It was the same Hanscom who long afterward became deputy superintendent of police in Boston.

He went to Waterford and watched around the house of the booze suspect day and night, hardly getting a wink of sleep for a week. At last he caught sight of "That Comical Browne" driving toward home. He stopped him in the highway, searched the wagon, and, under a buffalo robe, found a three-gallon jug filled to the neck, which he immediately seized in spite of vigorous protests. The jug was taken to the law office of A. S. Kimball for safekeeping.

The trial of Browne, charged with the illegal transportation of whisky, was arranged to take place the next day before Enoch Foster, a youthful justice in a nearby village, who was destined at maturity to sit upon the supreme bench of his state. It was Mr. Foster's first important case. Like wildfire spread the news, and from all directions people hurried along the country roads, afoot and ateam, to attend court.

Young Kimball opened for the prosecution by arraying the evidence against the defendant with his usual clearness and precision.

The deputy sheriff gave his testimony with pardonable pride.

Then Judge Foster asked the accused man if he had anything to offer in his own defence.

In a very meek and humble manner "That Comical Browne" arose and looked at the young judge with a smile that was childlike and bland. How innocent and childlike he looked as he stood first on one foot and then on the other and fidgeted with his hands.

"I come before your honor," he said slowly, "with the feeling that I have not been used just right; really and truly your honor, I do feel as if I had not been used right. I feel as though this court and these officers ought to make an apology to me; really and truly, your honor, I do feel as though they ought to make an apology to me.

The prosecuting officers gazed at each other in amazement. With this amazement there was blended the shadow of some undefined fear. Even the stern young judge appeared somewhat uneasy.

Browne had the reputation of unexpectedly springing practical jokes of hair-raising and blood-curdling character upon all sorts of people. What did his strange words portend? Were there sharp claws under those fidgeting velvet paws?

With melting meekness he continued the most unique defence ever offered before any court. It was not so much the few simple words which he said as the manner in which he said them; the expressive gestures and the wonderful changes of expression which were continually transforming the most mobile face in New England. In his case his face was literally his fortune. Under the marvelous magic of that matchless countenance the most common words seemed to be fairly bubbling over with delicious humor.

"Your honor," he said, "my poor family enjoy poor health; really and truly, your honor, they do enjoy poor health. The doctor declared that the poor health that my family enjoy was caused by the poor water in my poor little well.

"On Bear mountain there is a blessed spring; and truly, your honor, it is a blessed spring, its water is so sweet and pure. Every day I went to that blessed spring and filled that jug (pointing to the jug in court) with sweet, pure water for my poor family who do enjoy poor health.

"Yesterday, as I was returning from that blessed spring on Bear mountain with that jug filled with sweet, pure water, my team was stopped in the road by Deputy Sheriff Orrinton M. Hanscom of Oxford. He seized my jug of sweet, pure spring water and took it away from me; really and truly, your honor, Orrinton M. Hanscom of Oxford did take away my jug of sweet, pure spring water.

"I tried to reason with that headstrong man.

"He laughed in my face. He said that the jug was filled with whisky.

"Orrinton M. Hanscom has watched around my house so many nights without sleep that I believe he has gone crazy; really and truly, your honor, I do believe that Hanscom has gone crazy.

"The liquor in that jug was only the wild dream of a detective who needed rest.

"All night long I saw my poor family drooping around me; really and truly, your honor, I did see my poor family, who do enjoy poor health, drooping around me for want of sweet, pure water from the blessed spring on Bear mountain.

"I could get none for them for I had nothing to get it in.

"I beg and plead with your honor to give me back my only jug. Spill, if you will the sweet, pure spring water in that jug, but I beseech you to return the jug."

As "That Comical Browne" resumed his seat in the dock after this extraordinary defence he looked like a meek little man with no more guile in his heart than a baby.

A portrait painter would have achieved fame and fortune if he could have transferred to canvas the quizzical glance that Judge Foster shot at the defendant.

A big bluff or a practical joke?

Lawyer Kimball called Orrinton M. Hanscom in rebuttal. He testified in substance that the contents of the jug had been carefully tested before and after removal from the wagon and that the stuff had proven to be whisky.

The point had become so important that the attorney for the state took the stand himself and corroborated the deputy sheriff.

The case of the prosecution was closed.

Browne in his simple style inquired of the judge if he might ask the sheriff a few questions. The judge replied that as he was acting as his own attorney he could ask any questions within legal limits.

"By the way, Mr. Hanscom," said the meek little man, "is the jug in court the same jug that you took from my wagon?"

"It is."

"Can you positively identify it as the same jug?"

"I certainly can" (with emphasis.)

"There's a faint H under the handle which I scratched with my knife blade in the law office yesterday. I noticed the H a few minutes ago."

In spite of one of the brightest young attorneys at the bar, in spite of one of the sharpest detectives in New England, the meek little man had led up to a sworn statement which closed the door against any claim that the jug in court was not the jug which was taken from the wagon.

The defence was finished.

Judge Foster leaned back in his chair, closed his eyes, and seemed buried in profound meditation. Then he opened his eyes and gazed long and earnestly at the prosecuting lawyer, finally saying in slow, measured tones: "Brother Kimball, bring that jug of alleged whiskey to me."

Up to the bench it went.

The judge with calm deliberation grasped a tumbler and filled it from the jug. He held the glass toward the light and looked through it. A sip of the liquid caused no change of expression to sweep across his inscrutable countenance. He held the glass toward the light again and took so deep a draught that some of the more nervous women in the court room shuddered. Then he plabed the tumbler upon the desk, leaned back in his chair, closed his eyes and passed into another characteristic period of reflection.

For the second time Judge Foster's eyes opened directly upon the prosecuting lawyer.

"Brother Kimball," he said. "What do you call this awful stuff?"

The attorney for the state took the glass and tasted the fluid.

"I cannot name it, Judge," was the solemn reply.

The tumbler was passed to Hanscom, who drained it and was bewildered. There had been an appalling blunder somewhere. The jug with H under the handle, which he had so positively identified as the jug he took from the wagon of "that comical Browne," was really and truly filled with sweet, pure water from that blessed spring on Bear mountain. It was plain, from the absence of odor, that there had never been whiskey in that jug.

Judge Foster leaned back, closed his eyes and passed into his third period of reflection. His eyes opened upon the accused man whom he regarded with sternness for a few moments. Then in impressive tones he said:

"Charles Browne, you may stand up."

As "That Comical Browne" arose, the simple, childish smile upon his meek face gradually expanded into the most marvelous grin that human eye ever looked upon. That marvelous grin seemed to fill the whole courtroom like a sudden outburst of dazzling sunlight.

The judge continued: "Charles Browne, you are discharged from this court. You may go without day—and—you may take your only jug with you."

When the people had dispersed his honor put on his high silk hat which, with his long loose black coat, made him appear very tall, turned and looked benignantly at the state attorney, and finally remarked:

"Brother Kimball, we should have been spared such an awful experience if you had had the whiskey tested again in the anteroom this morning before coming into court. It is a lesson you should never forget."

Years later, when A. S. Kimball had become one of the distinguished men of Maine, Enoch Foster the best read justice of the supreme court of the state, and O. M. Hanscom deputy superintendent of the Boston police, they learned that on the night before the trial "That Comical Browne" entered the law office of Mr. Kimball by the shed window and removed the jug of whiskey, putting in its place a similar jug filled with water. His quick eye noticed the H under the handle and he scratched a similar one on the second jug.—[Boston Globe.

Leonard I. Knowlton of Mexico has a spherical granite stone which was found on the shore of a pond in that town. It is believed that the stone formed a part of the crude corn grinding apparatus of the Indians. Mr. Knowlton also has a mould for making spoons which was brought to Mexico by his grandfather more than a hundred years ago. The mould is of brass, and is of the tablespoon size. Pewter spoons were made in it, and there is but little doubt that making spoons for the neighbors formed one of the acts of neighborly service that no one would have taken pay for, any more than one would for a glass of water furnished a neighbor.

Wm. O. Straw.

Wm. O. Straw died at his residence on Broad street, Monday afternoon, Nov. 1st.

Mr. Straw returned from Montana, where he spent 20 years of ranch life with his wife, six years ago, and ever since his return he has identified himself with all that was for the betterment of our village and shown himself a real friend wherever he has served. Funeral services were held at the home Thursday afternoon, his pastor, Rev. W. C. Curtis, officiating. The Masons performed the rites of the order in a most impressive manner. There was an abundance of flowers from many friends who expressed deep sympathy for the widow. Interment was in Woodlawn cemetery.

Universalist Church Notes.

Last Sunday at the Universalist church there was a large audience, excellent singing by the choir and an interesting sermon by the pastor, on "All Souls Day."

The evening meeting of the Y. P. C. U. called out another large audience, mostly young people. It was rally day and all members present were ready with a selection as their names were called. All the evening meetings are well attended by the young people, and frequently extra seats have to be brought in to accomodate the audience.

The Sunday school has recently received a supply of new service books, the revised "Alta," E. C. Park, Esq., is the superintendent and under his care the Sunday school is growing steadily, in interest and numbers.

All departments of the church work are putting on new life now that the pastor has come here to live. Mr. Little's residence is on Paradise Road, fourth house from Broad St., and his telephone call is 7-4.

The Ladies' Circle are considering the holding of another sociable in Odeon hall, as the previous one was so heartily enjoyed by old and young. The social life is an important part of the church and should be cultivated. It brings the people together in pleasant intercourse, gives them a chance to get better acquainted, and helps to strengthen the tie of Christian fraternity, without which no church can live and thrive.

The ladies of the Universalist Circle have a chicken pie supper, Nov. 17.

Dr. F. B. Tuell has purchased the house and land on Chapman street that belonged to the James Smith estate.

The auto has been taken off the stage line between here and Upton and the former service, by horses, has been resumed.

E. C. Rowe, who since the death of Mrs. Rowe has felt poorly and hardly equal to going on with his business, which includes a large department store, has so far recovered as to be again in charge of affairs, and this week has gone to Boston to "stock up" for the fall and winter trade.

Maine Pomological Meeting

Wherever possible plow and cultivate the orchard. Accurate data show that best results are attained where tillage is the rule. Apply each year a reasonable dressing of stable or chemical fertilizers.

"Graft and care for your native apple trees. By care and attention they may be made a source of great profit.

"Choose a few and the best varieties. Plant on the best land you have. Buy of a good nursery firm and get the best two-year-old trees obtainable. Prepare land thoroughly, as for any hoed crop, space trees a good distance apart, prune back severely, plant carefully and then watch them grow. Head back trees each year as long as the top can be reached. Spray each year when dormant with Sclaecide to control all scale insects and to cleanse and invigorate the trees. When old enough to bear, spray with Bordeaux and arsenate of lead."

He showed on the screen how he started his orchard by clearing forest land or land so rocky before it was cleared that it looked as though "The devil had broken his apron string" over it. These orchards were on a side hill and the trees were shown in different stages till one would bear 10 or 12 barrels of fruit. At first he cultivated the land in rotation. Then he ploughed between the rows of trees to up within about where the boughs of the trees hung over the ground. He put the stable dressing and ashes on the ground soon after the fruit was harvested, not too near the trunks of the trees.

He prunes his trees in the winter or early spring. He also sprays his trees in the winter or early spring. He does not sort his apples in the field but in the storehouse at his leisure.

If old trees are not cut down for wood they should have the rough bark thoroughly scraped to get rid of the insects, and trimmed and pruned.

The Maine Experimental Station has an exhibition of "apple fungi." This shows all the diseases that apples are heir to by showing the apples in the stages of the diseases; the worms, insects and pests that bring about this state of affairs.

The Frost Insectcide Co., of Arlington, Mass., show their spraying outfit. This is the kind of outfit (value $135) that A. A. Herrick of Norway won for the best all-round exhibit of sprayed fruit at the New England Show at Boston.

The Norway Grange has a fine display.

Anna Ricker of Turner Center is the pianist and her music is greatly enjoyed.

Wednesday morning, apples were still arriving and continued to come long after the appointed hour, which was 10 o'clock. About 10 30 the president called the meeting to order and was opened with a solo by Frank Pike of South Paris.

J. H. Hale of Connecticut, who was to deliver the first address of the forenoon session, was unable to be present.

Prof. W. D. Hurd of Amherst, Mass., gave an address on "Some Essentials for Successful Co-operation among Maine Fruit Growers." Mr. Hurd showed in his address the necessity and the gain which could be derived by co-operation, and making this association a thorough business organization, which should be conducted by men of honesty and integrity and who know their business in all the branches. It should have enough capital to carry along the organization and must keep out of debt. The farmers would be accountable for the success or failure of these organizations and it would have to have the support of its stockholders. Mr. Hurd gave illustrations of these different organizations through the West and South, where associations have been formed and are making a great success, and what can be done there can be done throughout Maine.

Professor V. R. Gardner of Orono was the next speaker. He opened by saying that some were fruit raisers because their fathers were before them, some because of health, some because they wanted to and liked to do it, while the majority did it for the money there was in it. He gave the theory of raising fruit by means of good cultivation. This he demonstrated by means of a chart which contained the statistics of one acre orchard in New York, where part of the orchard was divided, one part being ploughed annually, while the other part was left uncultivated. The statistics showed a far greater increase of fruit both in quality, quantity and size where the orchard was cultivated each season. He gave other demonstrations of the fact from statistics of the different parts of the country.

At the close of these addresses there was a discussion by various ones on the different subjects touched upon in the addresses and different ideas exchanged.

Dinner was served at the old Grange hall at 12 o'clock by the Norway Grange and a large number were present.

The afternoon session opened with an interesting address by Dr. G. M. Twitchell of Auburn, on "The Cry of the Orchard." He dealt with the care of an orchard, the tillage, the feeding of the trees, etc. This was extremely interesting as well as instructive.

Prof. Gardner was then called on to judge for premium a display of Baldwins which extended across the front of the entire stage. He went down the line telling the different causes why certain plates of apples should be put out of the race. Some lacked uniformity, color, size, shape, and others contained blemishes, etc., and were soon taken from the line. It was decided to discontinue the premium contest until later before a decision was given.

Prof. E. F. Hitchings of Waterville gave a stereoptican lecture on "What We Can Learn at the New England Show." Mr. Hitchings had the slides made that were used for illustrating the lecture.

He said people tried to raise too many varieties and told how, recently, he was talking with a man and casually asked how many varieties he raised. "Oh," he said, "147." This just went to show the many varieties that are raised and he didn't see how any one man could raise the best out with so many varieties to care for.

Maine is deficient in raising the best quality of apples. There are a lot of orchards which should be trimmed up; the bad ones and the sick ones should be cut and give the best a chance to grow.

The pictures were especially interesting as they were taken at the New England Exhibition held at Boston recently, and one could gain a fine idea of the exhibit. Several pictures in particular were especially interesting to local people—the picture of A. A. Herrick's display of apples which won him the prizes at that show; also the spraying machine which he won. Loud applause greeted the picture which showed the immense bank of Maine apples which were exhibited there. Mr. Hitchings explained the pictures, telling the manner in which the hall was arranged for the different exhibits and the immense amount of fruit which was there could be seen by the illustrations, but the statistics and explanations given by the speaker made one feel as if he had attended the exhibit in person.

The banquet held at Concert hall, Wednesday evening was a perfect success in every way. The banquet supper was given by the Norway Grange, and at 6 30 about 125 sat down to partake of the bountiful supper which was spread on the immaculate tables throughout the hall. The menu contained all kinds of viands, and pastry and fruit which the inner man could desire.

Stearns' orchestra furnished music during the supper and played one selection at intermission.

The president, Wm. Craig, was toastmaster and called on various ones of the company to speak for five minutes. Each called on responded in an interesting manner and kept up the interest of the meeting to the last.

The first called on was Hon. J. A. Roberts who welcomed the Pomological Associatian and told some interesting stories as well as giving some facts regarding the raising of fruit. He told how a certain party wanted the people of this vicinity to send a carload of fruit to Massachusetts, but he replied that that would be impossible as we didn't have the time to prepare it. The answer was received that they were sorry that they were in such a condition. The request came at the time when our corn canning season was at its height, so Mr. Roberts explained conditions to the inquiring party and asked if he really thought that was such a bad condition after all.

The readers of the evening were Mr. Dennett of Lewiston and Rachel Cutt of Kittery. They each gave some very interesting readings which were of a humorous nature and were encored many times.

Dr. G. M. Twitchell of Auburn was called on. He said that the present exhibit was the best that he has seen for as many as 15 years, and he had attended them all. In raising fruit study the location and adaptability of the soil, cultivate and attend to all the branches of the work and enjoy your work, for unless a man loves his work he cannot obtain the results that he otherwise would. We are here attending this meeting as citizens of Maine and are interested in its prosperity. Now we must make the most of ourselves by living true, manly lives which will raise the standard, and we must teach our boys and girls right living, for through the young our places will be filled in years to come.

L. M. Felch of Norway was called on and spoke of this work among the schools and said that the country school must be as well prepared to do its work as the orchards are to do theirs. The farm is the place to look for boys and girls, as the place for turning out the best products. There is no state which produces apples of such a flavor, likewise men and women.

Arthur Forbes of South Paris compared the way of handling things a few years ago in the country store as compared with the way of doing at the present time, showing the methods of marketing have changed, and the progress in this line, and what is true of the store is likewise true of fruit raising and selling.

The secretary, W. J. Ricker of Turner, read letters of regret for being unable to attend the banquet from Gov. Bert Fernald and Senator Howe.

President Fellows of Orono said he wanted to call attention to the possibilities of this association. He showed the low condition of Germany in its cutlery industry at one time until it was realized something must be done and that some thing was done and to-day see where Germany stands in this trade. Denmark along agricultural lines supports a great many schools and that country ranks high along this industry. What has been done in these places, can be done here at home, and what might be accomplished with our young people of this large State through schools of training?

Frank Towne, Master of the Norway Grange, extended a cordial welcome to the society. He said the Grange existed for the benefit of the farmers and the speeches we have heard and what we have seen will be of great benefit to us as farmers.

Wilfred Wheeler of Concord, Mass., said that people of southern Massachusetts look to Maine for its apples. We need the government to aid us in Agriculture research. A part of the money which is being turned into the navy could be turned to agricultural improvements. A great deal could be accomplished along this line.

Hon. A. S. Kimball gave the association a cordial welcome. He told of his observations along agricultural lines in the different parts of the United States where he has traveled and he finds Maine has as fine an outlook as any. He said many of the young people have left the farms and are found in the West and in the cities. This is changing now and the young people are remaining on the farms. If we improve our opportunities, aided by science, New England cannot be surpassed by the western fruit.

Rev. B. S. Rideout was called on and said he enjoyed the way in which the principles had been touched upon. He had enjoyed the exhibit at the Opera House and said that good results would surely be derived from meetings of this kind.

The Editor of the Maine Farmer told some of the things he had learned while attending the exhibition and hoped that other things along the line of fruit growing would be given for many came with the sole purpose of learning.

Other speakers were Dr. John W. Bowers of Portland, Geo. Howe of Norway who gave a humorous sketch of the banquet, begining, "At the garden of Eden—" Dr. Merl of Auburn and Howard Smith gave some interesting stories, as well as facts regarding the raising of fruit and its profit.

BRYANT'S POND.

Another from the Old Neighborhood.

Uncle David W. Bemis passed away, Saturday forenoon, Nov. 6th, at his home on the Jotham Perham farm. Mr. Bemis was 91 years of age, one of the three residents of Woodstock who have passed the age of four score and ten. He was born in Paris, Oct. 19, 1818, the son of David and Mehitable (Fields) Bemis. His father lived on Stearns Hill.

When Mr. Bemis was quite young he went to Massachusetts and learned the shoemaker's trade. This he followed for many years, working some of the time in towns near Boston. He went West quite early and was a resident of that section for a number of years.

Some twenty-six years ago he came to Woodstock and bought the old Perham farm of his brother-in-law, Isaac S. Curtis.

Since the death of Mr. Curtis his sister, Abagail (Bemis) Curtis, has resided with him and during this last illness, a period of several weeks, she has had, though 84 years of age, constant care of her brother, assisted by a nephew, David Woodbury of Paris.

After a service at the house, Monday forenoon, his remains were taken to Paris for burial.

And so another has gone from out this old neighborhood, one whom young and old respected. His neighbors were all his friends. May his memory live among them, where a quarter of a century marking the declining years of his life was passed so pleasantly.

Dannie Bryant shot a deer near his home, Saturday night.

Mrs. Arthur L. Bessey and Marion left, Saturday, for a week's visit in Wakefield, Mass.

Mrs. George A. England of Boston visited her mother, Mrs. Sumner Sessions, last week.

J. E. Sylvester is acting as agent at the Grand Trunk station during the absence of R. E. Kerstead.

Mrs. Alfred P. Chandler, who has been suffering with rheumatism for several months, goes to the Portland hospital this week for treatment.

Mrs. Ellen E. Bowker returned, Monday, from Berlin, N. H., where she has been visiting several days with her daughter, Mrs. Ted Stanley.

Frank D. Small of Berlin, N. H., was in town over Sunday and returned home with his horse which has been out to pasture through the summer.

George G. Judkins is buying cider apples for the well known vinegar concern in Portland, E. E. Clifford Co. The price paid is thirty cents per hundred. One carload was shipped Monday.

The Greenwood telephone line is being extended into the village to Floyd Morgan's house. The switch will be at Swan's. This will be a change for the better and a great convenience to the Greenwood patrons.

Hon. Waldo Pettengill has purchased a $4500 touring car.

NORWAY, OCT. 27, '09.

DEAR FRIENDS:—

It is some time since you heard from us.

We have been too busy buying and getting in the new goods to take time for writing.

Do you need new underflannels?

We have a new line for 25c, full size just the weight for housekeepers.

For cold people, heavier ones at 50c, 75c, $1.00, etc.

Do you need a flannelette wrapper or the cloth to make one? We have both at low prices.

Our outing nightrobes must be O. K. both in quality and price, else they would not go so fast.

In heavy cotton, fleeced and wool hose, we have our usual fine line, hard to beat in a country village.

Have you need of a new coat or suit? We cordially invite you to inspect our line if you decide to have the suit made, don't forget we have new goods both in novelties and staple goods at prices as low as the lowest.

When you are in the store just step down in the basement and look over our new line of kitchen goods.

In fact when you are on the street, step in and see if you don't find something, something you would like to exchange some of your money for.

Sincerely yours,

S. B. & Z. S. PRINCE.

A Pleasant Way to Cure Catarrh.

Poor deluded victims!
Continually sprinkling and spraying and stomach dosing.
What are you doing it for?
Trying to kill the catarrh germs?
Might just as well try to kill a cat with fresh milk.
Sticking a piece of chewing gum in the upper left hand corner of the right ear would slaughter just as many germs.
You can't kill the germs that cause catarrh unless you get where they are.
You can get where the germs are by breathing Hyomei, the powerful yet soothing antiseptic, which is prepared especially to kill catarrh germs.
Just breathe it in, that's all. It gives joyful relief in five minutes. It is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, prop. of the Noyes Drug Store, to cure catarrh, or money back.
It is sold by leading druggists everywhere. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs $1.00. Extra bottles, 50c. Cures sore throat, coughs and colds.
"I take especial pride in recommending Hyomei to asthmatic sufferers, as I know by experience that it is a remedy that cures. I have not since using Hyomei had any recurrence of asthma."—Mrs. Wm. Burton, Owosso, Mich., June 22, 1909. 46-48

A Pleasant Way to Cure Catarrh.

Poor deluded victims!
Continually sprinkling and spraying and stomach dosing.
What are you doing it for?
Trying to kill the catarrh germs?
Might just as well try to kill a cat with fresh milk.
Sticking a piece of chewing gum in the upper left hand corner of the right ear would slaughter just as many germs.
You can't kill the germs that cause catarrh unless you get where they are.
You can get where the germs are by breathing Hyomei, the powerful yet soothing antiseptic, which is prepared especially to kill catarrh germs.
Just breathe it in, that's all. It gives joyful relief in five minutes. It is guaranteed by Frank Kimball, prop. of the Noyes Drug Store, to cure catarrh, or money back.
It is sold by leading druggists everywhere. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs $1.00. Extra bottles, 50c. Cures sore throat, coughs and colds.
"I take especial pride in recommending Hyomei to asthmatic sufferers, as I know by experience that it is a remedy that cures. I have not since using Hyomei had any recurrence of asthma."—Mrs. Wm. Burton, Owosso, Mich., June 22, 1909. 46-48

MI-O-NA

These women are only a few of thousands of living witnesses of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. Not one of these women ever received compensation in any form for the use of their names in this advertisement—but are willing that we should refer to them because of the good they may do other suffering women to prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a reliable and honest medicine, and that the statements made in our advertisements regarding its merit are the truth and nothing but the truth.

Harvest Festival.

The harvest festival was a great success, about $100 being made. It was held at the Baptist church with this program:

Piano solo.....Josephine Hodgdon
Vocal solo.....Mr. Pike of Paris
Reading.....Alma Spaulding
Piano solo.....Eloise Lawrence
Vocal solo.....Mrs. Newton
Reading.....Miss Spaulding
Piano solo.....Mr. Fessenden
Reading.....Ernest Packard

Harp drill.....Girls

Mr. Pike, the blind singer formerly lived in Hebron. Ernest Packard is a graduate of the academy and was greeted with applause. Alma Spaulding, a student at the academy, was especially good in her child dialect selection.

Mrs. Agnes Haskell and Mr. Hiram spent Sunday at Haskell's Corner.

M. H. Ryans spent part of a week in Byron and Roxbury.

Drew Thompson and daughter have returned to their home in Auburn.

A Buried Genius.

"He's just the inventivest man," said Mrs. Pulsifer to her neighbor as they sat on the back step shelling peas. The subject of their praise was dimly visible in the yard, and very audible because of a high pitched song and much pounding and scraping.

"Do you know what he's making now?"

The neighbor disclaimed all power to imagine.

"An attachment for the hanging lamp in the sitting room that puts it out when you shove it up. He's broke three lamp chimneys trying it, but, of course, it ain't perfected yet. That's what he said, anyway."

"Has he invented any useful thing besides this—when it's done?" asked the neighbor. "That is, anything that's profitable?"

"Wel, he ain't made anything that he could sell—not yet. But he did make one thing that's a great comfort to him, and I don't know who wouldn't like one if it could be made up and sold. You know he was always a cold-blooded fellow, especially nights, though I made him some good, warm, flannel nightshirts. But he was so restless he used to get 'em all wuzzled up around his neck. So what do you think he did?"

"Oh, I never could guess," said the neighbor.

"He put, or rather directed me to put, foot pockets on his nightshirts."

"Footpockets! What are they, like?"

"Just pockets at the lower hem on the inside, so you can put your feet in and hold the nightshirt down; same as my grandfather used to have straps on the bottom of his pants to go under his instep."

"Well, I declare!"

"Yes, it seemed real clever, but that isn't all. He has two sets of pockets now, one front and one back, so that he can turn over in bed inside his shirt and just change his feet into the other pockets. I never saw such a man for ideas! And I don't believe he has been heard of outside this town, either."

Why Our Coffees are Richest in Flavor

Caffeone, you know, is the aromatic principle of coffee. This nectar-like oil forms the coffee flavor and fragrance.

Moreover, coffee that is rich in oil is wonderfully wholesome. For caffeone is a germ destroyer of remarkable value.

When you drink "Fifth Avenue" Coffee you insure yourself the maximum amount of this ambrosial oil.

Because only the berries famous for their richness in caffeone are used in our blend. And to develop this essential oil to its utmost, coffee must be roasted as the O'Donohue Coffee Company roasts it.

It must be roasted in closed cylinders over hot coals. It must be roasted for 35 minutes so that every berry is crisp and brown—from kernel to outer shell. Such a coffee is

Fifth Avenue Coffee

New York's Famous Coffee

We spend three times as much money for roasting as is spent for other coffees. But we produce a coffee three times as good. Three times the strength, flavor and healthfulness.

Yet "Fifth Avenue" Coffee costs no more than coffee one-third as good. You may as well have the best.

Avoid Half Roasted Coffees

Other coffees are roasted in perforated cylinders over gas and roasted for only ten or fifteen minutes. Because fuel costs money.

Such coffee is only half roasted. And half roasted coffee is half raw. Only half the flavor-making oil is developed.

That is why ordinary coffee is weak and colorless. That is why it tastes flat and insipid.

You never get the smooth, mellow flavor and subtle delicacy that makes coffee so good in ordinary coffee. "Fifth Avenue" Coffee yields these qualities to the utmost.

You Owe Yourself Fifth Avenue Coffee

"Fifth Avenue" Coffee is packed in air-tight tins. This sealed, dust-proof package insures you the full strength and fine flavor of the choicest coffee you can buy.

Coffee sold from open bins is spoiled coffee. Avoid it. For coffee beans have pores which roasting tends to open. These pores absorb germs and foreign odors.

For your own protection and satisfaction insist upon "Fifth Avenue" Coffee. Then you'll get coffee as good as it can be.

The Good in Men.

Any effort which is made to arouse people to action necessarily involves a study of human character. A study of human character is one of the most fascinating and, if not guarded well against, one of the most disappointing pursuits imaginable. Take the experiences of those in our evangelistic services who are persuaders of men. Man after man turns from the appeals which are directed at his conscience, only to return for another service and still reject the appeals. "A hard heart," "no sympathy," "no sense of right," "out of tune with the Infinite,"—all these and more, are the phrases used to describe such a character. In dealing with such a man one comes to regard him as a hopeless case and he is finally passed by altogether.

Take the case of the poor drunken wretch. One's pleadings seem in vain. One's offers of sympathy and help go unrewarded. The glass is above all else—above friendship, parents, self. Finally one loses courage in scattering the messages of love, and passes by "on the other side."

But we ought to be mindful of one great fact, namely, that there isn't a man in all the universe who does not possess some great God-like trait of character. To put it differently, there isn't a man living who hasn't some good in him. Old Rip Van Winkle, sot that he was, loved the children and his dog "Schneider." There are Rip Van Winkles without number in every community—men who to all outward appearances are past redemption but who possess some redeeming trait of character that links them to the Divine.

It is not for us to pass judgment too lightly; it is certainly not for us to consider ourselves the peer of any others; it is our bounden duty in our dealings with fellowmen to treat all with respect, remembering that a heart of love beats strongly in every breast. To find the approach to it is for those whose special work is to lead men to the light.

E. Milton Cutting of Andover, who is 85 years of age, has been a guide for many years. He takes pride in the fact that no employer ever heard him use profane language.

Married Too Young.

A noble and manly fellow, whom no reader can help loving, even if he is married, writes a pathetic letter to one of the "great dailies;" pitying himself hugely because he married too young. Perhaps the stress of his emotions may excuse his somewhat shaky grammar, when he says:

"At the age of 18 (I am now 20) I met a girl whom, in the undeveloped state of my mind, I thought was the one created by God to share my joys and sorrows. I kept after her day and night, and after six months (I was then eighteen and six months of age) we were married."

Up to this point, it does not appear that anyone but himself was at fault about his marriage; there is not even a man who could long withstand and deny a person who was 'after him day and night.' But, O, sympathetic readers, let your tears flow for him when he goes on to relate his agonizing sorrows.

"Shortly after the knot was tied I fully realized the mistake I had made. Always accustomed to the joys of life, I was bored at the monotony of living in a flat, and often longed to get ont "with the boys" for a good time. That, however, was out of the question, except when I could concoct an excuse, such as 'important business,' 'delayed at the office,' 'train broke down,' or some other subterfuge."

If the dear fellow was "bored by life in a flat," why didn't he buy a palace on Fifth avenue? Probably his wife would not have objected. The artlessness with which he admits lying to her in order to "get out with the boys" and leave her alone, after she had been alone all day, is very winning; one feels like taking him in one's arms and wiping away his bitter tears. Blubbering, he goes on piling up the agony; he says:

"A man makes the mistake of his life by getting married too young, thereby putting a millstone around his neck that 99 cases out of 100 never is removed this side of the grave. He is practically ostracized by all his former boon companions, and where he was the first to receive an invitation to any affair that was to take place while he was single, now that he is 'the old man' his room is much preferred to his company. Every door that was at one time wide open for him is closed forever, and in the narrow confines of his own little world he has to drag out his miserable existence."

Of course his wife did not at all feel the being taken away from her parents and boon companions, and being kept in the boresome flat to do housework and attend to a baby—O no! It was simply fun for her to live alone and be forgotten and neglected by her girl-friends, and left out of their festivities and good times; the husband is the only one who suffers, although he goes out in the street and to his employment every day, and has more or less companionship with his fellows—to say nothing of the times he deceives his wife about "broken down trains" and being "detained at the office." This noble and honorable husband and father goes on to say:

"I could, were I so inclined, have our marriage annulled on the ground that in the eyes of the law I am only an infant, even yet, and therefore not qualified to make any kind of a contract, and have a 'free leg' as before, but when I see that sweet face of our baby boy the very thought of such a thing is repulsive."

How exquisitely scrupulous! How noble and honorable to refrain from casting dishonor on the woman who married him in utter good faith, and making her name a by-word, and her life a ruin, and her child nameless and disgraced! Nothing could be more noble than this decision, and we are lost in admiration of such nobleness. But even our sympathy pauses for a moment to consider a question of natural history, when he finishes his plaint by sobbing:

"I have made my bed, to my own misery and loss, and I am determined to lay on it."

And we cannot help hoping that after he "lays" he will sit and hatch, and report the result. He himself is certainly "a bird."—[Sunday Times.

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA.

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna.

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me.

"I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it.

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me.

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment.

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

The Sunday Paper.

Its Defence.

Of late it seems to have become the hobby of a certain class of people to deride the Sunday paper. The fact is deplorable for the reason that the said piece of literature is far from being malicious as represented; on the contrary fills a place in the life of the hard working American which is beneficial and should have more appreciation.

The average American is a hard working man or woman, spending the average of 10 hours per day, 6 days of the week at the place of business or in work connected with business, and but little time is to be had between Monday morning and Saturday evening for light diversion. Most of the time to be had for reading is spent on magazine articles which would be classed as heavy reading, not diverting, and hardly recreation.

Sunday is the only day he has to counteract the other six and all serious thoughts should be cast aside for we all realize the effect of "all work and no play," and here comes the mission of the Sunday paper which gives the sporting news and latest fads. It is interesting, light, diverting and is what we need to lead our minds away from ourselves and our work, into other realms. We most assurably need the change, and wherein can lie the harm?

Some maintain that the paper is derogatory to the minds of children, claiming the "funny page" to give a distorted idea of art and humor, but at the same time they are encouraged to read and reread Mother Goose and it is an assured fact that Mother Goose was not illustrated by Rembrandt nor did Shakespeare write the tales, which-by-the-way, are more vivid and untrue to nature than "Foxy Grandpa" and "Gloomy Gus." It seems inconsistant.

Recently I heard the observation made, that as the working man has so little time to devote to literature it was such a pity he should waste a part of said precious time on such a "piece of trash" as the Sunday paper when he might be deriving some good from one of the classical authors.

As a student theory, that sounds very well, but when a man, woman or child has worked or studied for six days, a radical change on the remaining day is a neccessity for a well balanced mind and let us be grateful that for the sum of five cents, there is brought to our door every Sunday morning, such a quantity of light, diverting amusement. The trouble with the worker is that too little time is given to "foolishness" as it is termed by wise people.

The harder work one does, the lighter diversion is needed to counteract it and the Sunday paper with its various departments, is to the business man or woman, what the Friday evening social is to the boarding school student, and we all realize how down-right silly are boarding school socials, but nevertheless they have their place for the purpose of reaction after a week's study.

A mixture, a variety, is a neccessity to a normal mind and unless had, one sinks into a rut and becomes what the world calls a crank. And if one will allow themselves to be entertained for a few hours, and their thoughts led into different channels by a Sunday paper, be grateful, not disgusted, as some appear to be.

Buy a Barrel of This Flour

You will find it real economy to buy the famous William Tell Flour by the barrel.

You will not only protect yourself against advances in price due to "wheat corners" and crop conditions, but you will always be sure of the finest grained bread—the whitest bread—the lightest biscuit—the most delicious pastry that can be baked.

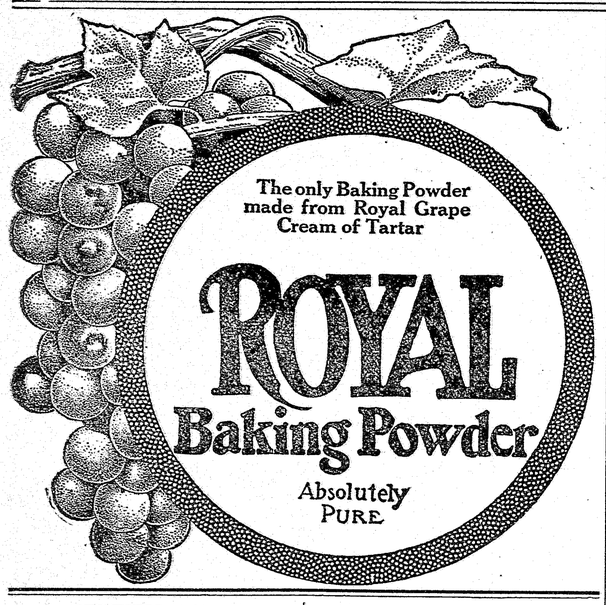

Note how much cleaner William Tell is than other flours—due to the costly equipment of the Ansted & Burk Company's mills for protecting the grain and flour in grinding.

He did not bring his sending apparatus, but incomplete as it was he got one distinct message the night of the big shipwreck recently and told the neighbors the next morning. When the papers came they told the same story he did. He used the tall juniper tree on Mrs. Keniston's roadside as the highest place and strung his wire from there. Mr. Whitman is much interested in the work and hopes to secure a position later. He returned to his home last Friday.

OXFORD.

The Result of an Injury.

Albert Henry Irving died Sunday morning at the State asylum in Augusta. Mr. Irving was badly injured in the fall of 1903 by being thrown from his wagon and striking the left side of his head upon the frozen ground. Since that date Mr. Irving failed mentally and physically.

On Jan. 19th of this year he was moved to the asylum at Augusta. Mr. Irving was 57 years of age and is survived by a widow, Mrs. May Irving, two daughters, Mrs. Etta Bradford of Turner and Evelyn Irving, one brother and several sisters.

The funeral was held Tuesday at 1.30 p. m. at their home on High street. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Newport of Turner. The interment was in Oxford cemetery.

Gentlemen's Night.

Saturday evening, Nov. 6th, was gentlemen's night at Oxford Grange. The men occupied the chairs and at close of work furnished an entertainment. Among the good things was a very interesting talk by Freeman Andrews. Mr. Andrews related an incident that occurred in 1858. He was in Mexico at that time and visited the scene of the "Mound Builders" operations. He penetrated into one of the mounds and brought away a skull and also a thigh bone 23 inches in length. Many of these mounds were completely filled with the bones of a prehistoric age.

Joseph V. Hunting read a most commendable piece upon the duty members owe their Grange. Dr. Farris made a palpable hit in his interpretation of "Modern Yale." His clear and resonant voice easily reached high G! and his audience was simply convulsed with laughter. If Harry ever decides to change his profession, the writer will stake him to a long engagement.

Dennis Martin rendered a short but interesting poem. Fred Russ gave a recitation with a real down East twang. Master Fred is a favorite with the Grange and his good work always calls for an encore and he always responds. I wish we had more like him that would take hold and do the best they could.

Nov. 20th will be ladies' night. Lady officers will fill the chairs and furnish the entertainment. Let every member be present if possible and give them a good representation.

Rev. Mr. Chapman from the Yarmouth pastorate preached at the Methodist church at the morning service, and the Rev. Mr. Rideout of Norway preached at the Congregational church in the afternoon.

35 members of Craigie Temple, No. 41, Pythian Sisters, attended the District Convention held in Pythian Sisters' Hall, Norway, Tuesday evening, Nov. 9th. Three Temples were represented, Norway, Paris and Oxford. Craigie Temple showed the largest representation at roll call. Craigie Temple exemplified their beautiful ritualistic work with a genuine candidate and gave a most pleasing exhibition of floor work. In fact it was a complete surprise to many members. The ladies clothed in white gowns formed the different letters in the floor and did the difficult and intricate figures with a precision and dignity that won for them rounds of applause. And they deserved all the praise they received as their work was most excellent and shows that ladie can do fully as good if not better work than the men.

Cyrus Cobb.

Cyrus Cobb died in Oxford Nov. 5. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. B. S. Rideout, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Cobb had reached the good age of 80. For many years his health had been poor. One of the most noticeable pieces was one given by the children with the word Father in colored flowers in a beautiful pillow of roses.

SACK SUITS

Are the commonest garments worn by men in ordinary daily activities; the regular thing for business. That's all the more reason for having clothes; because the sack suits they make for us are not common looking at all; they 're distinguished; a man dressed in one of our suits looks different; looks dressy, stylish without being extreme in dress. The fine tailoring does it; the correct designing in style; and the quality of all-wool fabrics, helps the general effect. We know of no other clothes that compare with them in these points.
